Are you an aspiring executive coach or consultant ready to elevate your impact? In a growing market valued at £9.4 billion in 2024, there's enormous potential for success. Yet many skilled coaches aren't realising their full potential.

As an executive coach, you may recognise these challenges:

- Your coaching offer has no meaningful differentiation in an increasingly competitive market
- You're missing the unique credibility needed to sell into executive boards
- Your sales and marketing approach lacks the sophistication needed at board level
- You're caught in a cycle of one-to-one coaching assignments with middle and emerging management, with limited time to build a senior client portfolio

To build your coaching practice and work directly with board-level leaders, you need a unique approach. Through The Coaching Circle, you can now access the proven methodologies, leading international profile, and extensive network of Dr John Blakey.

When championing trustworthy and purpose-driven leadership, being part of a supportive community helps us all be brave and creates a multiplier effect far beyond what we can achieve individually.

Two Powerful Frameworks

Through The Coaching Circle, you'll gain access to Dr John's proven frameworks that have influenced thousands of leaders worldwide. These frameworks unite our community through shared language and approaches, creating consistency and amplification across organisations:

The Trusted Executive

Developed through extensive academic research, the 'Nine Habits of Trust' methodology is regarded as a reliable and consistent measuring tool to identify leadership behaviours most likely to inspire trust. This approach has been proven with over 10,000 leaders globally, delivering remarkable results:

- > 74% less stress
- > 106% more energy at work
- > 50% higher productivity
- > 76% more engagement
- > 40% less burnout

The methodology encourages leaders to practice these nine habits until they become normal behaviour, transforming their leadership approach through consistent application.
